

Sac and Fox Tribal Member Wins Blue Ribbon at SWAIA Indian Art Market

Sac and Fox member Tony Tiger won a first place prize in the 2013 Indian Art Market in Santa Fe, New Mexico. The piece is titled "Believe"; a 22"x30" relief print on hand painted watercolor paper.

"Believe"

Tony is the son of the late Wanda Sue and William Tiger and grandson of the late Lorena Mack Wood. Tiger is the Director of the Bacone College Art program and assistant professor of art. Tony is a curator of art exhibits as well as artist; Art from Indian Territory: Contemporary Native Art from Oklahoma, is currently on exhibit at the All My Relations Gallery in Minneapolis, Minnesota. Tiger has a Sauk mix media piece in the Art Without Reservations: Changing Hands 3, a traveling exhibition, the exhibit is at the Museum of Contemporary Native Art in Santa Fe, New Mexico until the end of December. Changing Hands 3 opened at the Museum of Art and Design in New York City in June 2012.

Tony will return to the Santa Fe and MoCNA in January for a solo exhibition, which will be on exhibit until May 2014. In November he and Anita Fields (Osage) will exhibit in a two person art exhibition at the Walton Art Center in Fayetteville, Arkansas.

Tony would like to thank the Sac and Fox Nation for the assistance with his education and encourage our Sauk people to dream big.
