Sauk Language Department Hosts Inter-tribal Language Workshop

On October 25th, the Sauk Language Department hosted an inter-tribal language workshop under the direction of Department Director Jacob Manatowa-Bailey. This workshop was titled Establishing a Master Apprentice Program for Youth and Young Adults. The focus of the workshop was a description of the Sauk Language Master Apprentice Program, and the methods utilized by the Sauk Language Master Apprentice Program that can be successfully replicated by other tribal language programs wanting to develop conversationally fluent young people within their own tribes.

The workshop was well attended, with 81 individuals representing nine regional tribal language organizations, as well as the University of Oklahoma's Linguistics Department and Northeastern State University's Cherokee Language Program.
